

As discussed, whilst we are happy to answer the various questions and queries that are being presented by Havant in response to the application to form a SINC, we would much rather deal with a comprehensive response in due course.

To this end we have spoken with Jonathan Driver (Environmental Control Officer at Havant) who has confirmed that he has been sent a copy of the application as a statutory consultee but has not yet reviewed it.

We discussed the reasons for the earthworks and discussed broad details of the proposed works in as much that they are proposed to be managed under an MPP with material import from Berewood, with material tracking, confirmatory testing of import etc. We also discussed the existing onsite topsoil being pushed back, stored in accordance with DEFRA guidelines and then restored following the earthworks.

Jonathon said, on the basis of our conversation, that he was essentially comfortable with the proposals, the proposed management regime and with the proposed source of the materials at Berewood. He confirmed that in due course he would review the application and the technical details and come back to us with any detailed technical questions or queries at that time.

I trust that this is of assistance.

Dominic
