Hi Stephen

Please see below from the archaeological advisor regarding Lovedean report.

Dear Mr Smith,

Woodcroft Farm, Lovedean, Waterlooville 13/00804 - archaeological evaluation

Thank you for forwarding the archaeological evaluation report. I note that no archaeological evidence was encountered. In light of this it appears that the site has a low archaeological potential and that there is no merit to further archaeological work. In the event that this evaluation report is submitted to the planning authority I would endorse it and not raise any archaeological objection to the discharge of the archaeological conditions.

Yours sincerely

David,

I have attached six images of trenches amongst the remaining 19, all of which are now open. There are no archaeological deposits, features or finds in any of the trenches. The trenches are very similar to those opened in the first stage and characterise the site as having a shallow topsoil directly over predominantly clayey natural.

With all the trenches now recorded, we will begin backfilling this afternoon.

Regards

Paul

David,

Almost a year ago we opened 20 of a proposed 39 trenches at Woodcroft Farm, on behalf of CgMs Heritage. We are due to return to the site this Wednesday 27th March to open the remainder. I will keep you posted on progress.

The plan, attached, shows the remaining trenches that we will be opening, in blue.

Regards

Paul
