The entrance lodge on Horndean Road with the original access and part of the former northern boundary wall

The main house showing the entrance, views of the principal southern elevation, the rear elevation and the link to the 1983 office building

The former service courtyard showing the coachhouse, stable block with clock, and dairy with the offices and car parks

Significant interiors in the main house are the circular entrance hall and reception, the inner hall and staircase and the 1930s Art Deco rooms. Other distinctive features include the secure door to the wine cellar and the clock mechanism in the stable block

The view south across the parkland and the house as seen from Southleigh Road
