To whom concerned,

Prior to any development, it will be necessary to protect the root protection areas of any trees to be retained in proximity to the development and on any access routes.

This will be undertaken by erection of quality fencing as advised in BS;5837 Trees in relation to construction. For access on driveway for delivery of materials it will be necessary to protect root area of Beech T8 by a covering or compressible material i.e. woodchips covered by stout boarding i.e. Marine plywood. With vehicle access by light tracked machines only.

No commencement to development works should be undertaken until such fencing and protection is installed and approved by the relevant authority.

In addition, if all these criteria are all fully met, the new build house will have no ill effect on any trees in the surrounding area of which are too be kept.
