2.3.3 Protection of the CEZ by the use of the existing boundary fencing

BS 5837 (3.6) describes the CEZ as 'the area based on the RBA from which access is prohibited for the duration of the project.' In practice this can normally be done by using any combination of fencing and agreed protection.

Where possible, existing boundary fencing will provide adequate protection. However, due to the presence of a hole in the fencing adjacent T3 within the construction zone, CEZ barriers will be installed locally in order to safeguard the wellbeing of this tree.

Where existing fencing is being used as the CEZ barrier, care must be taken in order not to damage the fencing during construction.
