

I have sent in a further comment on the above application, and would like the attached photographs to be added to those comments.

As you can see from the first photograph, on two of the proposed lamp posts to be used there are already 'parking restriction' signs. On others there are traffic signs. For one week each month prior to the 3rd Saturday Farmers Market, there are two large wooden parking restriction signs, and also police restriction signs on other posts. And they propose to put another two on each of those posts to a total of seven?

In the second photograph of the South end of the square, you can see the yellow plastic signs, which again are there for one week prior to the market, along with the traffic signs. And they want another two?

The last photograph shows the war memorial side of the square, with yet again the yellow plastic posters plus all the necessary road and direction signs. And yet they want more.

By the way, those yellow plastic signs ARE illegal. It is a business organisation as defined by the legal department in Hampshire County Council after a Stage 3 complaint. This is subject of a recent formal complaint to the Council Leader and Council CEO.

Kind regards,

Alan Barwis
