Dear Sir/Madam,

I wish to object to the above development.

I live in London and have a caravan on Hayling Island.

If you want to see the detrimental aspects of over development, come and see London at its peak. The public transport is full and the roads are bumper to bumper.

I come to Hayling to get away from this. To go sailing, walking cycling and enjoy the open spaces.

Further house building will simply encourage more people to move into the area and increase pressure on the housing and infrastructure. You cannot build your way out of a housing crisis. The demand for housing must be tempered.

The government must put a population limit on England.

Refugees and immigrants are welcome but it must be on a 'one out before one in' basis.

England is full.

London is full.

Hayling is full.

Please start the ball rolling on this new way of thinking and reject the application.

Yours sincerely,

Jonny Bucknell.
