Dear Mrs Haywood,

Discharge of Archaeological Condition, Application APP/15/00919 Land north of Station Road, Hayling Island

Thank you for your consultation. The archaeological mitigation strategy requires an initial archaeological survey which will inform subsequent archaeological stages. I am aware that this initial work has been described in a Written Scheme of Investigation and has been implemented on site. Whilst I have not yet seen a report and nor has a report of the results been submitted to you I carried out a site inspection earlier this week. I can confirm from my on site observations that the evaluation did not identify any substantive archaeological remains. It identified a small number of relatively recent linear features most likely to be associated with past drainage of the site. There was nothing exposed on site that would lead me to advise that further archaeological work is merited.

Until the report is submitted to support this observation I anticipate that you will not want to discharge the archaeological condition. However I am aware that no archaeological remains of note have been uncovered.

Yours sincerely
David Hopkins
