Dear Sirs,

Application 20/00241

When I purchased [REDACTED] I was impressed by the fact that although the property was in a highly built up area, nonetheless the high fences round the rear patio garden meant that I would be able to enjoy the garden in near total privacy.

The proposed layout of the house, the subject of the application, would involve a considerable loss of privacy as the large upstairs windows would enable a viewer to look down on to a considerable section of the garden. I would object to this happening.

I may say I am surprised at the orientation of the proposed house with the upstairs windows having a not very attractive view of the buildings of Orange Row and the rear aspect of the houses in South Street. Most people would turn the building round by 90° so that the windows would face south with, perhaps, a view of the harbour.

Yours faithfully,
