I am writing on behalf of my husband and myself in support of the proposal to have a Lidl food store on Hagling.

I have not as yet used Lidl, but I have many friends, unable to use buses to go into Havant to shop. Tuffrail to lift bags on and off and unsure of footing, for whom a taxi in is not financially possible, but have to pay a premium for everything from basics upwards in the shops on Hagling as I shop at Aldi's and Tesco. I am very aware of the large price difference those least able to afford it are forced to pay.

Internet shopping is also not possible. not computer (cost) and not Internet literate.

Lids would be a life saver for many on the island. Surely it is not beyond those who have a raft of choices as to where they shop and pay, to give an alternative to our less fortunate residents.
