Comment Reasons:

Comment: Whilst not currently a resident of Hayling Island, my family has been involved historically in architectural developments on the Island since the 1920s. The particular area nearby to the proposed development has always been piecemeal, perhaps charming, and somewhat 'higgledy piggledy', but nevertheless it has a certain recognisable vernacular style. The introduction of the proposed large cubist aspect flat roofed building among adjacent buildings with traditional pitched roofs seems to be a rather severe style change.

Also the introduction of this square aspect two story dwelling with a building line that appears to be well north of the existing line of houses will provide a new, and in my opinion looming aspect to the entrance of Langstone Harbour.
